From opening day, Bears were out everywhere and the weather was fine.

- 1) Serious Business: Bear Retrieval Team. Guide Wes and Hunter Marvin.
- 2) 3) Outfitter Frank, Hunter Thor and Wes perfecting the "Three-man Bear Carry". Note: Three-Man Carry works best if front two guys are the same height.
- 4) A view of Stuart Lake from Tommy Hill.

Spring 2013

- 1) One that Got Away. Recurve Hunter Bruce stalked to within 20 meters of this freight-train of a Boar.
- 2) Hunter David from Oakland stalked and stuck this Big Boar (6'8") at 40 meters with his Compound Bow.
- 3) Louis Black Jr, tracker and "Everybody's Pal" followed the bloodtrail of David's Bear for over 300 meters. Another Bear Retrieval Team success. We see a lot of other game beside Bear during the hunt.
- 4) Cow Moose with two calves of the spring.
- 5) A healthy young Lynx on the trail of small game.

1

1) Thor and Marvin from Norway with their big Boars (6'8" / 6'10"). Note the prominent battle scars on Thor's Bear. Facial scars are common among mature males. They're always jousting for territory and access to females.

2

2) Clayton from Delta, BC with his big Boar (6'3").

3) "Forty-One" was a real hot area this year. Two of our hunters took Black Bears and Clayton killed this nice Wolf in Forty-One. It's a major movement corridor for many species. And it's a place that we'll keep going back to.

Don B of New York, New York

In the spring of 2005, Don killed a huge Black Bear Boar (7'2" and over 400 pounds) on the first day of his hunt. After his Bear, Don decided to come back to hunt a Bull Moose. And he wanted to learn how to call one in. We taught him, he studied further and he practiced. More than once he practiced the long, low bellow of a Cow Moose in heat on the corner of 73rd St and Park Ave in uptown Manhattan. (If we only had video of that.) And of course, being New York City, nobody paid any attention to a guy in camos yodelling like a Moose. Don got so good at calling that while hunting us, he called-in Bulls for two other Hunters. Well, Don got his chance too and within 10 minutes of calling, this mature Bull came out of the bush and made a beeline toward Don and his guide, Geoff. Don dropped him at 150 yards. So now, The spirit of Don's Bull will have a place of honour in Don's apartment and a great view of the Manhattan skyline.
